*So many unmarked trees

Blaze a Trail! When I'm not at the library I'm often traipsing down local trails. Luckily, I have guides like Bob Lorentzen's hip-pocket books to steer me out and back from the trailhead. However, in other times and woods, I've lost my way because it got too dark or rainy. My forays Into the Wild never resulted in misery or death like the hermit adventurer, Chris McCandless. But there have been moments of fear. Each unknown has called for a creative response and map-making skills stored in my memory.

The COVID-19 pandemic dropped everyone in an unfamiliar wilderness, library staff included. We could not draw on service plans from days gone by. In March we closed the library building and locked the bookdrop. How would we resume service? There was no well-defined trail out of the woods. Since 1987 I've entered library buildings to do the tasks at hand but never imagined a workplace without patrons. We'd had a brush with a flea infestation at a former branch, but the service resumed after a weekend's deep-cleaning. But a virus on books, on hands, in the air! What's the remedy?

To move forward we needed to look at things from a patron's perspective: "If I want something that can't be delivered during the pandemic, can I arrange to pick it up?" While we knew our digital resources would meet many needs, people wanted physical material. So we reconfigured circulation to make curbside service work. We started with a heightened fear of contaminated surfaces, with special directions for items of various types. Quarantine times kept growing. It was logical, yet over-cautious: dictated by lab testing and no "results" from the real world. Of course, you'd hate to conduct that kind of experiment where library books are used to test community transmission of the virus. That's NOT in the guidebook!

We love visiting with patrons at Fort Bragg Library. We kept that going--safely masked and socially distanced from the moment we accepted "Returns" this spring. Our summer reading game was pretty lively this summer and we enjoyed giving ice cream passes, books, teeshirts and seeing people pick up new books to read. With the onset of wet weather, we moved our checkouts and returns, print jobs and short tech questions, to the front lobby. This well-ventilated space is the perfect place for a quick visit to the library. Longer reference and tech help also work well over the phone. Of course, we're fortunate to have a super team with various skills to keep the operation going.

As I said above, the library world had no guide book, and each library had to adapt their services to the space at hand--just like hikers blazing a trail through a specific terrain. The great thing is we're all on this trek together. Even centenarians would only have been babies in 1918 so our community hasn't encountered this type of adversity before. The calm quiet streets of COVID-ville are anything but tranquil. Many patrons have thanked the library for providing "curbside service" to alleviate cabin fever and offer the joy of learning something new! Some have expressed anger and anguish about how hard it is to be isolated, not only from library space, but from the whole community. This shows the work ahead of us. There's a social crisis that goes beyond a social service fix or small town renaissance. We need a sense of belonging and home to feel an openness to others and a willingness to share and learn from them.

Fortunately, that is in our guidebook. Libraries have always been important crossroads in the wilderness. Librarians are pathfinders. Bespectacled and out of view, we are always reading the signs ahead, curious about new ideas to lead us through this remarkable world!

Winter 2020: Our patrons have honored their New Year's Resolutions to visit the library! Attendance is back up to 10000 between door counts and programs. (It helped to be fully-powered by our friendly utility company.) Weird Science magnet maze day helped draw kids through the doors! Another high point for kids was Giant Monopoly, with Kim Doyle as the Banker emcee, Valerie McIntire as the cop who sent kids to Jail, and Jasmine Norris supervising snacks. "Wild About..." programs featured Dragons and Mice. Dragon day featured stories, a dragon craft with moving parts and a selection from Voyage of the Dawn Treader, read by Jasmine and followed by the movie. Families made a "Lending a Hand" tree to celebrate Martin Luther King, Jr's Day of Service. 55 people attended.

Patrons and staff exchanged "book valentines" with each other during February by joining in the "Love that Book!" display. Adult book clubs gained popularity. Valerie's Brewpub Book Club drew a large enthusiastic crowd. Even without the perks of a brewery, Dan's afternoon book club brought avid readers together to eager to discuss the issues raised in the books. Carole Poma's Seed Library speaker series featured expert gardening advice from Jughandle Farms (native plants) and Simply Succulent Nursery. Peggy McGee represented the Fort Bragg team at the Comptche seed exchange. Library friend, Kathy Silva, hosted a wonderful origami valentine program. Adults also made lovely crafts under the guidance of super-crafter, Amie McGee. A Valentine Hearts' Mobile hangs outside our children's room!

The Friends Annual Meeting had 60 people in attendance, with Seaside String Sisters performing. Friends are happy to report a full board, making it easy to make the quorum necessary to conduct business each month. In January, Greg Egelston, of Masons Lodge 179, presented $1157.81 for Library Expansion, raised at the Soup and Salad dinner last fall. Noyo River Grill hosted a musical fundraiser for the Friends in late February. By month's end, the Friends' property on 421 N. Whipple was cleared of buildings (thanks to Windspirit Aum of Wind and C Construction); and a beautiful fence was built on the north property line, (thanks to Friendly Borders Fencing Company). The fence was built in part with a donation from Lyme Redwood Forest Company. Despite it being Year of the Rat, the neighbor north of us is happy to have no more rats from the old house and ivy!

Our outward focus has kept us busy, moving over 6000 items to and from our patrons since mid-March. No overdue fines have been charged since the pandemic, though some have paid for lost items. The Mendocino Board of Supervisors agreed to fine waivers while our buildings are closed.

Closed doors gave staff plenty of time to clean and do careful weeding of material that was outdated or in poor condition. These projects have continued since March—with recent focus on the children's room. Inward focus makes the whole staff eager for that "library expansion." We need more space!

Blaze a trail, be an explorer, read a book!

September is usually Paul Bunyan weekend, so we celebrated "COVID-style" with online programming and crafts. We adapted to the sad fact of no parade and prizes, by going back to the roots of the celebration. Dan read the tall tale of Paul Bunyan and passed out Paul and Babe puppet craft bags. We had more serious artistic pursuits, as well. Fort Bragg High School Senior, Kenly Reyes, had planned to display her art this spring but the library building was closed. Thanks to mentor, Carolyn Schneider, Kenly was able to hold her show online at <https://fortbragglibrary.org/kenly-reyes-artist/>. We provided voter information from the League of Women Voters and Secretary of State. Kim and Valerie did an adorable instructional film for the U.S. Census, and a story time.

In October, we read spooky and funny stories to celebrate Halloween. Our incomparable children's librarian dressed as Rapunzel –the perfect costume for month seven of library lockdown! She lowered her yellow braid only to make sure people got their curbside pick-ups. No one was permitted to scale the tower walls! Adult book group and poetry open mic continued to meet through Zoom. Poetry Writing workshop remains a source of creativity and encouragement for the poets in our library community. Wherever there's poetry, music is not far away! Dan filmed a living room Oktoberfest with local accordionist Jan Kessner on the branch Youtube channel. She took special requests submitted on our Facebook Page. The 18-song concert is a foot-stomping good time and gave needed income to a performer whose gigs dried up for eight months due to safety precautions at restaurants and farmer's market.

Wild About! Monthly Programs

Fort Bragg Branch Library is located in an amazing coastal setting surrounded by forests filled with animals and rivers that flow into the ocean. Library patrons of all ages seek to protect the biodiversity of our area and the library plays a vital role promoting ecology.

In 2019 we took our teaching role to a whole new level with a monthly series called, Wild About! Each month featured a different animal--most of them found in our area and some far afield. The programming included Saturday story times and craft programs, followed by afternoon films or talks for adults and school-aged youth. Occasionally we tied-in adult crafts and Weird Science for kids.

In the course of a year we've partnered with the Salmon Restoration Association, Mendocino Coast Audubon, Woodland Wildlife, field biologists and the State Parks. Animals ranged from endangered species to familiar faces: owls, salmon, whales, mice, coastal raptors, mountain lions, bats, butterflies, spiders, sea turtles, pigs, wolves, wombats, elephants and--believe it or not--dragons! (We squeezed in dragons for fantasy fans and showed The Voyage of the Dawn Treader which features a dragon-shaped boat and a boy who turns into a dragon!)

During Fort Bragg's Whale Week we had an excellent talk about Pacific whales and migration, adult crafters made whale tails from corks and adult poets read poems about whale protection at Town Hall. The month on wolves kicked off with a marionette version of Peter and the Wolf and ended with an impromptu talk by a ranger who'd worked with wolves in Yellowstone. On Big Cat day, kids made mountain lion paw print art in the morning and adults heard (and shared!) stories about living safely with mountain lions. The Butterfly month featured noted children's author, Elisa Kleven, doing a craft celebrating her book: Glasswing Butterflies. Adults attended an informational talk about butterfly pollinators led by local gardening expert, Katy Pye. An adult book group read Julia Alvarez's novel, In the Time of the Butterflies, coinciding with the U.N.'s International Day Against Violence directed toward women. Each program promoted people's responsibility to protect the featured animal, but did the teaching in fun and creative ways.

All of the Fort Bragg Library staff were involved, serving the library's central mission: to educate and entertain. The Wild About! programs focused our energies and programming, but we also had time to host a life-sized Monopoly game, a fall carnival for 70 kids and our annual Kiddie Parade during Paul Bunyan Days.

Our amazing Friends of the Fort Bragg Library co-sponsored all these well-attended programs and provided food and prizes. The Friends gave generously to back our goals, while raising money for the new expansion in the lot north of our library. Over $75,000 has been raised by those who joined The Thousand Dollar Club. That sum has paid for the disassembly of buildings and reclamation of redwood from the purchased property adjacent to the library.

All forces combined to make a spectacular 2019-2020 for Fort Bragg Library, putting us in good shape with ample public support as we rolled into March 2020. Then, we encountered a species no one was Wild About: the coronavirus. To be continued, we hope!

Finances & Statistics - Fiscal Year 19-20

County-wide
Statistics

Library Revenues and Expenditures

DEFERRED FACILITY PROJECTS

Project	Estimated Cost
Ukiah Library non-slip concrete entrance & exterior bookdrop	$55,000
Ukiah Library community room & smoke alarm system	$140,000
Ukiah Library roof replacement	$900,000
Willits Library new carpet	$60,000
Willits Library community room kitchen removal	$1,500
Willits Library staff kitchen remodel	$18,000
Willits Library roof replacement	$300,000
Total	$1,474,500

Fiscal year 2019-2020 saw a lot of changes for the Library budget. Expenses continue to rise faster than revenue is being taken in. County staff, including the Library staff, received long awaited raises due to cost of living adjustments and salary increases.

That along with increasing operating costs such as A-87 and facility projects and maintenance have caused the Library to use some reserves. As of July 1, 2020 the Library reserve balance is $1,203,259.

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic and the decrease in funding from taxes as well as library fines and fees, the total revenue was $254,410 less than budgeted.

Although there was the unexpected facility project of replacing Willits Library's HVAC unit, the Library was able to save on expenses and decreased expenditures by $399,425 from the budgeted amount.

The Cultural Services Agency is working hard to reduce spending, including evaluating every position vacancy, while providing the best service possible. However, from the list of deferred facility projects, it is clear that additional funding resources will be necessary.

Mendocino County Library to Connect to the CENIC Broadband Network

Library Tech

The Library is served by the County Information Services Division

The Library would like to send a big thank you to the IT staff who set up new equipment, keep the computers updated, troubleshoot problems, and who will be working with CENIC on upgrading the broadband connections and equipment.

Some Library IT facts:

- ◆ 64 staff computers
- ◆ 37 public internet computers
- ◆ 12 catalog and newspaper computers
- ◆ 16 printers
- ◆ 12 wireless access points

Thank you to: Greg Foster, Cody Snider, Gary Henning, Zack Polston, Tony Rakes, Beth Keech, Nick Wharff and all others working behind the scenes!

The California non-profit organization, the Corporation for Education Network Initiatives in California (CENIC), aims to ensure that all California residents have access to high speed networks at their public libraries and educational institutions, and so far has connected over 70% of public libraries in the State to the network as well as the CSU and UC education systems.

The CENIC network consortium also applies for E-rate (Universal Service Program for Schools and Libraries) discounts as well as California Teleconnect Fund (CTF) discounts on behalf of participating libraries.

The Mendocino County Library system, CENIC, and the California State Library through the Califa Group are partnering to provide direct connection of 1 Gbps at Ukiah Library, Fort Bragg Library, Willits Library, Coast Community Library, and the future Laytonville Library, and a connection of 100 Mbps at Round Valley Public Library. Due to the necessity of upgrading circuits at some locations, it may take up to two years to complete all connections.

In the long run, by joining this network consortium, the Library branches will have improved broadband connections and save money at the same time.

Zip Books

The Zip Book program was developed by the California State Library in partnership with the North Net Library system. The Zip Book program allows participating libraries to have additional funding to provide books shipped from a vendor directly to Library patrons.

The items that qualify usually have to be unavailable through the library catalog. Without the Zip Book program, these items would be provided by an interlibrary loan request or by the purchase of a new book.

During the first few months of "shelter in place" due to the COVID-19 response, restrictions on the types of books allowed were lifted as well as the number of requests which could be made. Patrons could request a variety of books including bestsellers mailed directly to their homes. This was a wonderful service that was provided before curbside pick-up was initialized and was heavily utilized during COVID-19 restrictions.

As a result we saw an increase in usage up from an average of 50-60 Zip requests filled per month, to a whopping 200 Zip requests filled in the month of June! When we received the next fiscal year's funding in July, it was a nice surprise to have received more than we had been given in previous years.

This funding is a wonderful recognition of how much this program is utilized by the Library patrons of Mendocino County.

Note: The FFBL 2021 Budget assumes a return of the Labor Day Book Sale . If conditions prevent the sale, a more austere budget will be adopted for the remainder of 2021.

2020 has been a tough year for all, but we are happy to report robust online book sales of over $11,000 to help supplant the lost revenue from the cancelled Labor Day book sale and support our creative library educational programs. In addition we are immensely grateful to the North Coast community for its donation of over $30,000 this year to the library expansion project. Thank you! In 2020 we completed the demolition of the old buildings at 421 Whipple and reclaimed some fine wood to use in the new library structure. In 2021 we will be sharing plans with the community and seeking your feedback. We will then hire an architect to review our plans and give us an expert estimate of construction and 'soft' costs for the expansion, thus giving us a realistic fund-raising goal for our coming major capital campaign. As we look ahead to 2021 we hope to hold a Labor Day book sale and reopen our Noyo book store; but more importantly we hope for health and renewed economic prosperity for all.—Mary Gill, Treasurer

More Pathfinders! Library staff is not the only ones cautiously making their way through the woods! Generous patrons see the way ahead and offer their help, too. The Friends' Thousand Dollar Club saw four more $1000 donations since the closure, upping the group to 76. Generous shoppers contribute to donation jars placed in stores throughout the community.

Friends Board and Fundraising Committee continue to hold Zoom Meetings, planning their next steps. They were forced to cancel the annual Labor Day booksale that raised over $8000 last year. The beloved bookstore in Noyo Harbor is shut to protect the health of Friends who work the store. However, online sales continue to bring in funds. (Huge thanks to upstairs sorters and online vendors, Joyce, Valerie and Chris!)
